Wright State University BSOM Interprofessional Engagement (2017-2019)

Wright Curriculum (July 2017-2019):

Developer - Interprofessional engagement (IPE) curriculum, including self-directed and online training for first year students, community-based shadowing and observation experiences for first year students and clinical patient-care case discussions for 3rd and 4th year students

Wright State University BSOM Integration of Population Health (2009-2019):

Wright Curriculum (July 2017-2019):

Course Developer & Director, Upstream Medicine (2015-present): M1 course, taught annually. Led faculty team in development, piloting and implementation of in-depth population health module. This module provides deeper integration of social determinants of health, health disparities and inequities, health economics, finance, and policy, prevention and health promotion, and screening for social factors that affect health.

Wright State University BSOM Legacy Curriculum (2009-2017):

Course Developer & Co-Director, The Patient, Physician, & Society (SMD 515): M1 course, taught annually. Created a new course from previous Human Development and Medical Ethics & Professionalism Courses, including integration of medical ethics and professionalism into normal human development and population health. Developed multiple new learning activities, assessments and exams.

Course Developer & Director, Introduction to Biostatistics and Epidemiology (SMD 537):

M1 course, online December-March. Facilitated online instruction, including content development, assessment, and one-on-one assistance to students.

Co-Course Developer & Co-Director, The Physician as a Professional (SMD 621): M1 elective course. Collaborated on the development of educational objectives, learning and reflection activities, recruited guest speakers, and co-facilitated class sessions on professional identity formation, critical thinking and self-directed learning, communication and conflict resolution, leadership, quality improvement and patient safety, and interprofessional teamwork.

Course Developer & Director, Healthcare Leadership (CMH 613): M1 elective course.

Recruited guest speakers and facilitated course structure and content including sessions on the U.S. healthcare system, quality improvement and patient safety, transparency and evaluation in medicine, interprofessional practice, leadership characteristics, and professional identity formation.

Co-Course Director, Human Development (SMD 513): M1 course, taught annually. Introduced and integrated population medicine concepts into course. Helped create and deliver Teen Pregnancy Prevention TBL, Middle-Aged TBL, Falls in the Elderly TBL, and course instruction modules on Health Across the Lifespan and Adulthood – Preventing Chronic Disease.

Faculty Team and Facilitator, Early Meaningful Clinical Experience (Pilot): M1/M2 elective course. Helped create and facilitate small group discussions focused on integration of biomedical, population health, clinical practice, and health maintenance issues surrounding typical primary care patient cases.

Course Faculty, Principles of Disease (SMD 530): M1 course (2-3 class sessions). Worked with course director to integrate epidemiology, including development and facilitation of in-class exercise, Disease Surveillance and Outbreak Investigation TBL, GI TBL, and exam questions.

Wright State University MPH Curriculum Development:

Course Developer & Director, Health Awareness and Advocacy Communications (CMH 7430): MPH course, required for MPH Health Promotion and Education concentration. Developed and provided weekly instruction in course designed to introduce students to health communications campaign development. Students created and presented targeted communications campaigns for specific health issues to increase awareness and change behavior.
