

Luis Walter Alvarez

- Born in San Francisco, California in 1911
- American experimental physicist, inventor and professor
- Worked within radiation labs doing groundbreaking research
- Contributed to numerous World War II projects that improved things like radar, explosives and aviation
- Was a member of Project Alberta, which worked with nuclear bomb testing that played a role in ending World War II
- Was awarded the Nobel Prize for Physics in 1968

